PARIS 2024 PRESS KIT OPENING STATEMENT

To all the athletes, I congratulate you on your momentous achievements. To those fortunate enough to take home an Olympic medal – each of which includes an actual piece of iron from the Eiffel Tower – you are deserving of a tremendous “bravo” from the entire world fencing family.

Emmanuel Katsiadakis
FIE Interim President

Dear Friends,

The Paris 2024 Olympic Games offers athletes worldwide the opportunity to compete in one of the most iconic cities and countries for fencing, from July 27 to August 4 in the Grand Palais. This spectacular event – the ultimate global sports competition – is a magnificent celebration of both the Olympic Games and fencing. Indeed, the International Fencing Federation was founded in Paris in 1913, after being one of the original modern-era Olympic sports at the first Games in 1896 in Athens. Pierre de Coubertin, the “father” of the Olympic Games and co-founder of the International Olympic Committee, was himself a fencer. Today, fencing is flourishing everywhere, and Paris 2024 represents more than a century of growth and development as an exciting Olympic event.

All 12 fencing events will take place at the Grand Palais, including men’s and women’s individual and team events in foil, epee and sabre over nine days. Our 2010 World Championships also took place in the Grand Palais, and the venue presents fencing to the world unlike any other location.

The 212 athletes from 53 countries will create experiences and memories to last a lifetime, and images of our beautiful sport for the world to enjoy forever. Each fencer will become a star for their respective countries, an inspiration for generations to come, having helped our sport take yet another leap forward in its global image.

To all the athletes, I congratulate you on your momentous achievements. To those fortunate enough to take home an Olympic medal – each of which includes an actual piece of iron from the Eiffel Tower – you are deserving of a tremendous “bravo” from the entire world fencing family. You have earned your place in history, and we applaud your dedication and commitment to fencing.

I wish to warmly thank the Paris 2024 Organising Committee, as well as all of our officials, referees, coaches and staff who make this wonderful event possible. We also thank and acknowledge the journalists, influencers and sport fans communicating to the world for your extensive and essential coverage of Olympic fencing in all forms of media.

The FIE is proud to be a member of the International Olympic Committee, and we are all dedicated to pursuing the Olympic Spirit and Dream. This is a time to celebrate new and old friendships, both on- and off-the-piste, and to enjoy an exceptional time when the world comes together in peace, honour and friendship through sport.

THE HISTORY OF OLYMPIC FENCING

1896

Since the very beginning, the history of fencing and the Olympic Games have been intertwined. The first Olympic Games of the modern era took place in Athens. Nobility, honour, respect and tradition are the key words governing fencing and these were reflected in the Olympic ideal. Thirteen fencers representing four countries participated in the foil and sabre events; epee was not yet an Olympic event. The discipline was entirely male, and 15 athletes from four nations participated in three events: Foil, masters foil, and sabre.

1900

The Olympic Games were held in Paris within the context of the International World's Fair. 260 fencers representing 19 countries participated. Epee became an Olympic discipline.

1904

The Olympic Games were held in St. Louis, Missouri, USA, as an adjunct event to the World's Fair, but the only fencers from outside the USA to take part were two Cubans and one German. This was the first Olympics with a team event, which was men's foil.

1906

The "Intercalated" Games in Athens were intended to be the first of another series of Olympics to be held permanently in Athens halfway through the normal Olympic cycle, but the cost was prohibitive and only one was held. Although 12 countries took part - more than at any previous Games - in 1949 the IOC ruled that they were not official. There were eight events held in all in three weapons, including epee and sabre masters, three-hit sabre, team epee and sabre, and individual events for each weapon.

1908

London Olympic Games. Foil was removed from the Olympic programme that year because the organisers considered it to be a graceful and athletic exercise rather than a sport and "a form of sport not improved by competition", only held as a display. Team epee and sabre were both officially introduced.

1912

The organisers of the Stockholm Games wanted to modify the rules relating to the foil target area. The dissatisfaction this caused highlighted the need to unify the rules in fencing.

1924

Paris Olympic Games. Women's Individual Foil was included in the Olympic programme.

1936

Berlin Olympic Games. The epee electrical apparatus, which had been around since 1931, made its Olympic appearance. Metallic pistes replaced the old cork ones.

1956

Melbourne Olympic Games. The electric foil, which had been used at the world championships for the first time in 1955, became an Olympic weapon.

1960

Rome Olympic Games. A women's foil team event was introduced

1988

Seoul Olympic Games. The electric sabre was included; there had been electric sabres since 1986.

1996

Atlanta Olympic Games. First women's epee events, individual and team. Women epee fencers had already competed during the 1989 World Championships.

2004

Athens Olympic Games and first Women's Individual Sabre events. Fencing became completely mixed, with all three weapons available to men and women, but the team events at women's foil and sabre were dropped to comply with the IOC's restriction of ten fencing events.

2008

Beijing Olympic Games. There were five men's events (three individual and two team) and five women's events (three individual and two team). Thus, full gender parity was reached in Beijing.

2012

London Olympic Games. Olympic fencing adopted strip lighting alongside the pistes integrated into the scoring system. This innovation, as well as adding a bright new dimension to the sport, helped the audience clearly see which fencer was scoring.

2016

Rio Olympic Games. An exciting new cross-piste formation was implemented for the Rio Games. Unlike the ExCeL Arena in London, the Carioca Arena 3 in Rio provided spectator seating around the venue. The new layout helped the audience view fencing from any point in the venue.

2020

Tokyo Olympic Games. For the first time in its Olympic history, the full set of 12 fencing events (three weapons, men and women, team and individual) are taking place. Tokyo 2020 is taking place in 2021, as the Games were postponed by a year due to the global COVID-19 pandemic.

2024

Paris Olympic Games. For the third time, Paris hosts the Olympic Games, 100 years following the last time in 1924 (prior to that, in 1900). Fencing is taking place at the Grand Palais, where the 2010 Fencing World Championships were held. A total of 212 athletes compete, with 106 women and 106 men.

FENCING AT PARIS 2024

THE VENUE

Fencing at the Games of the XXXIII Olympiad, known as Paris 2024, will take place over nine days from Saturday, July 27 to August 4. Twelve events in fencing will be held: men's and women's team and individual competition in epee, foil and sabre. Fencing has been in the Olympic Games since the beginning of its modern era in 1896, one of only five sports to have that distinction. 212 athletes, including 106 women and 106 men, from 53 countries will participate in the Paris 2024

Olympic Games. Fencing competition will take place at the Grand Palais, located at the Champs-Élysées in the 8th arrondissement of Paris. Taekwondo will also be held in the same venue, following fencing. The Grand Palais is the iconic monument of the Rmn-GP (Réunion des musées nationaux – Grand Palais). Built for the Universal Exhibition in 1900 and dedicated "by the French Republic to the glory of French art", it was designated as a historic monument in 2000.

FENCING AT A GLANCE

Epee

The epee has a total length of 110 cm and its blade is 90 cm long. The total weight of the weapon must be less than 70g. As in foil, the epee is a thrusting weapon, and the attack is made with the point only. In epee, the target area is the entire body, head to toe, including any clothing and equipment. Unlike sabre and foil, in epee there are no right-of-way rules regarding attacks. Any hit that arrives is counted. Touches are awarded solely based on which fencer makes a touch first, according to an electrical recording apparatus. Also, double touches resulting in a point for each fencer are allowed in epee, although the touches must occur within 40 milliseconds (1/25 of a second) of one other.

Foil

The foil has a total length of 110 cm and its blade is 90 cm long. The total weight of the weapon must be less than 500 g. The foil is a thrusting weapon only, and fencers can only score a hit by striking the point of their weapon on the defined target area of their opponent, which is limited to the torso. Invalid ("off-target") hits also stop the bout but are not counted. Foil is governed by the rules of "right-of-way". The fencer who starts an attack has the right-of-way. To avoid being hit, the opposing foil fencer usually attempts to parry the attack and, if this is successful, riposte to score. To avoid being parried, the attacker may use several tactics, such as disengages or coupes, which are different ways to avoid the opponent's blade.

Sabre

The sabre has a total length of 105 cm and its blade is 88 cm long. The total weight of the weapon must be less than 500 g. The sabre's basic difference from the two other weapons is that a hit can be made with the cutting edge (the full blade) and not only with the point. The target area consists of everything above the waist, including the head and both arms. As in foil, sabre is governed by the rules of right-of-way. The fencer who starts an attack has the right-of-way. To avoid being hit, the opposing sabre fencer usually attempts to parry the attack and, if this is successful, riposte to score. To avoid being parried, the attacker may use several tactics, such as disengages or coupes, which are different ways to avoid the opponent's blade.

THE FENCING COMPETITION

A total of 212 athletes will take part in the Olympic fencing competition. This number includes 106 men and 106 women.

THE RULES

The fencing competition will be held in accordance with the editions of the following documents that are in force at the time of the Games:

The FIE Rules are available on the:

CLICK >

The IOC Olympic Charter available at:

CLICK >

In accordance with Rule 46 of the IOC Olympic Charter, the FIE will be responsible for the technical control and direction of fencing at the Paris 2024 Olympic Games.

DURATION & SCORING

The fencing competition will be held in accordance with the editions of the following documents that are in force at the time of the Games:

INDIVIDUAL EVENTS

In foil and epee, all bouts in the individual events consist of three periods of three minutes, with one minute between periods, or until one fencer has scored 15 hits. If the third period is completed before either fencer has scored 15 hits, the fencer with the most hits is declared the winner. If the scores are tied after the third period, there will be a further minute. One fencer will be randomly given priority. The winner will be the first fencer to score a valid hit; if no hits are scored, the winner will be the fencer with priority. In sabre, if one fencer scores eight hits, there is a one-minute break.

TEAM EVENTS

Each match consists of nine bouts, to a maximum of 45 hits. Each bout will last three minutes, or until one team's score has reached the next multiple of five hits: a score of five hits after the first bout, a score of 10 hits after the second bout, a score of 15 hits after the third bout, and so on. If the time of the ninth bout is completed before either team has scored 45 hits, the team with the most hits will be declared the winner. If the scores are tied after the ninth bout, there will be a further minute. One fencer will be randomly given priority. The winner will be the first fencer to score a valid hit; if no hits are scored, the winner will be the fencer with priority, as well as the team he or she represents.

COMPETITION FORMAT

INDIVIDUAL EVENTS

All events will be fenced in a direct elimination format throughout. Individual competitions at Paris 2024 will comprise approximately 34 to 37 fencers per weapon and will be run as an incomplete direct elimination table of 64.

The initial order of fencers will be established according to the latest FIE Official Ranking (<https://paris.fie.org/>). If there are fencers qualified who do not appear in the FIE Official Ranking, and/or if there are fencers equally ranked in the FIE Official Ranking, the FIE will carry out a preliminary drawing of lots as follows:

- First, a drawing of lots will be carried out for any fencers equally ranked
- Then, a drawing of lots will be carried out for any fencers who do not appear in the FIE Official Ranking

Once all fencers have an initial ranking, there will be a drawing of lots in pairs for all fencers in the table. The individual events will be run by direct elimination throughout and the bout for third place will be fenced.

TEAM EVENTS

All teams are composed of three fencers and there can be an alternate athlete. Teams will be seeded according to the FIE Official Team Ranking at each weapon. Where teams are equally ranked, a drawing of lots will be carried out. Teams will be placed in a complete direct elimination table of 8.

The teams will retain their initial ranking without a drawing of lots. If there is a host country team, it will be placed in the direct elimination tableau according to its place in the latest FIE Official Team Ranking in the weapon concerned.

The match for third place and places five to eight will be fenced.

REFEREEING

APPEALS

In individual events, each fencer has two possible appeals in direct elimination bouts. Should the referee agree with fencer who appealed for video refereeing, the fencer retains his right of appeal.

In team events, the fencers have the right to a single appeal for video refereeing per relay and are entitled to retain this right should the referee agree with this appeal.

In case of an appeal for video refereeing, the referee walks over to the video referee. They watch the video together and after consultation with the consultant delegate, the referee gives his final decision. No other review of the same action can be requested.

If the fencer's scores are equal at the end of the match, for the decisive hit, the referee must use the video refereeing.

The video referee may at any time request that the referee review his decision.

MEDALS & DIPLOMAS

Medals and diplomas will be awarded in each event of the fencing competition in accordance with the IOC Olympic Charter (Rule 56: Victory, medal and diploma ceremonies and the awarding of medals)

FENCING & EDUCATION

CLEAN SPORT

As a signatory of the World Anti-Doping Code, the International Fencing Federation is implementing an effective and Code-compliant anti-doping programme for the sport of fencing. The FIE is dedicated to complying with Clean Sport regulations and helping to educate fencers and fencing support personnel about their critical importance, and how to adhere to and precisely follow Clean Sport requirements.

SAFE SPORT

The FIE is committed to providing athletes and non-athletes a safe environment free of any form of harassment, abuse or discrimination. Each individual, athlete or non-athlete, has the right to be treated with respect and dignity, and to be protected from all forms of harassment and abuse. FIE Safeguarding officers are available for any athletes or other participants at the Olympic Games and all major fencing competitions.

INTEGRITY

Fencing is based on the fundamental values of the Olympic Movement, and especially observance of the rules, discipline, sportsmanship, loyalty and respect of the athletes, officials, referees and spectators. The FIE is committed to upholding the integrity of sport and the fight against manipulation of competitions. All forms of participation, promotion or support of betting related to sports and competitions are prohibited.
